Powers Flies U-2s Again—as Test Pilot

Francis Gary Powers, the U-2 pilot whose plane was downed over Russia two years ago, is working in Burbank, Calif., for Lockheed Aircraft Corp., maker of the U-2.

Lockheed said last week that Mr. Powers, 33, had joined the company last month as an engineering test pilot. He will be testing U-2s returned to the company for modification and repair.

Mr. Powers returned to his job at the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) after his release last February by the Russians. He resigned from the agency Oct. 6.
